

Opponents of 'Old Guard' Aim To Beat Miller

Progressive Factions of State Republicans to Seek Unity to Defeat Barnes-Wadsworth Man

Greiner Heads Opponents

Political Chaos Prevails; Conferences Are Planned Before Saratoga Session

With the Republican State Convention less than ten days off and with the "old guard" agreed upon designating Nathan L. Miller, of Syracuse, for the nomination for Governor, progressive members of the party are seeking a way of uniting the anti-Miller forces to put him out of the running.

Prominent among the anti-Millerites is Fred Greiner, the veteran leader of Erie County. Ex-Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson, a nephew of the late Colonel Roosevelt and onetime chairman of the Progressive State Committee, while not opposed to Miller, is against David Jayne Hill for temporary chairman.

The appeal is being made to the numerous candidates for the Governorship that it is to their interest to unite their followings, so as to prevent Miller's designation, thus leaving the field open to all of them in the convention or at the primaries.

Those opposing Miller realize that they have a hard fight on their hands. They are backing a line-up of "old guard" leaders which includes William Barnes, of Albany; William L. Ward, of Westchester, and George W. Aldridge, of Rochester. While Mr. Barnes would like to name Senator Henry M. Sage, of Albany, he realizes that this would be next to impossible. His second choice is Miller. United States Senator James W. Wadsworth also has cast his lot with the Miller faction.

Wadsworth Rules Committee

Wadsworth also wants the convention to designate him for United States Senator. Unless control of the convention is wrested from the "old guard" he will be designated. Those who control the state committee are frank in declaring that what Wadsworth says will go.

United States Senator William M. Calder is opposed to Wadsworth, and will fight to prevent his designation. He fears that Wadsworth, if renominated, would be too big a leader for the Republicans to carry this fall and it may result not only in the defeat of the state ticket, but in the loss of New York's forty-five votes in the Electoral College.

There is also a powerful anti-Wadsworth sentiment among the drys and the suffragists. Both have asked that the Republican leaders give them some one besides Wadsworth to vote for. Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, a member of the executive committee of the Republican State Committee and chairman of the Women's Executive Committee, has advised the Republican leaders against designating Wadsworth.

There was talk yesterday of an amalgamation of the anti-Wadsworth and the anti-Miller forces. Whether this can be effected before the delegates gather at Saratoga on July 27 was a matter of speculation.

Those behind the move believe that with the exception of the counties along the southern tier, which are solidly anti-Wadsworth, anti-Barnes and intensely pre-Miller, there can be an effective line-up of the anti-Wadsworth and anti-Miller groups. Miller, until he resigned from the Court of Appeals to practice law, was a resident of Cortland, one of the southern tier counties.

Miller Opposition Not Personal

The basis of the opposition to Miller is not personal. His high attainments as a jurist are realized by all his opponents. Their hostility is based upon the belief that his nomination would mean the return of Barnes to complete power and that the Albany leader then would begin a punitive war against all those who opposed him and helped in ousting him from the state leadership in 1914. Many oppose Wadsworth because of his support of Barnes.

Barnes is almost as greatly concerned in keeping the nomination for Controller away from his enemies as he is in seeing that a man one favorably to him is designated at the Saratoga convention. The principal opponent of Barnes is Calder. The latter is working to have State Senator Charles C. Lockwood designated for the nomination for Controller. This carries more patronage than any other department in the state. At present one of Barnes' most stalwart supporters, Lafayette B. Gleason, secretary of the Republican State Committee, holds the position of tax appraiser, the prize plum in the State Controller's office. It pays only $10,000 a year salary, but in special cases he receives Gleason's special fees, awarded him by the Controller, amounted to about $300,000.

Barnes is opposed to Lockwood, and wants the nomination for Controller to go to Albany. If Senator Sage is not designated for Governor by the convention it is Barnes's purpose, according to the well informed, to have either Sage or some other Albany man succeed Controller Travis.

Livingston Against Lockwood

Lockwood also has local opposition to his candidacy. Jacob A. Livingston, county chairman, is against Lockwood because of Calder's opposition to Livingston.

It is doubtful if on the eve of a state convention the party ever has been so torn by internal strife as it is now. There will be conferences on the Sunday and Monday preceding the Saratoga session, at which an attempt will be made to prevent a free for all fight on the floor of the convention hall.

Two of the candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor have opened headquarters in this city. One of them, Francis M. Egan, Secretary of State, is at the Commodore. Senator George F. Thompson is at the Hotel Madison. The latter has chosen Frank M. Smith, of Rochester, a former Deputy State Attorney General, as campaign manager.

Thompson announced yesterday that he had given permission to one of the Niagara County delegates, who had been instructed for him, to vote for Elton H. Hooker at the convention. This delegate is A. Hooker, a brother of the former national treasurer of the Bull Moose party.

Thompson said that he intended to make traction one of the big issues of the campaign. He said that he could solve the problem with a square deal to all investors and stockholders. There would be no necessary in some instances, he said.

Republicans Lose Enforcement Plank

Prohibitionist Says It Is Not in Platform Issued by Chicago Headquarters

CHICAGO, July 17.—The law and order plank adopted by the Republican National Convention has been left out of the platform as issued from Republican headquarters here, Virgil G. Hinshaw, chairman of the prohibition national committee, said today.

"Prohibitionists," said Chairman Hinshaw, "are thunderstruck by the failure of the Republican platform issued by the national committee to embody the law enforcement plank adopted along with other planks by unanimous vote of the Republican National Convention."

"Clinton N. Howard, representative of the Prohibition National Committee, and William Jennings Bryan sat in the Republican convention and heard this plank read in advance of its adoption, which followed without a dissenting voice. It was published as part of the platform in all the big papers of the land."

"Yesterday I went to the headquarters of the Republican National Committee, in Chicago, and Captain Victor Heintz, in charge, admitted the omission, and said he was taking the matter up with the authorities in New York in order to ascertain the reason for leaving it out."

The plank referred to by Mr. Hinshaw read:

"The equality of all citizens under the law has always been a policy of the Republican party. Without obedience to law and maintenance of order American institutions must perish. Our laws must be impartially enforced and speedy justice should be secured."

World Court To Consist of Eleven Judges

Lawyers Virtually Complete Draft of Scheme for International Tribunal of Justice to Sit at The Hague

Root's Ideas Adopted

Place Will Be Provided for United States in Event She Joins League of Nations

By Arthur S. Draper

From The Tribune's European Bureau
Copyright, 1920, New York Tribune Inc.
LONDON, July 17.—After a month of labor the eminent jurists under the leadership of Elihu Root, who have been sitting at The Hague, have virtually completed the draft of their scheme for a permanent international court of justice. It will be presented to the League of Nations within a fortnight.

Mr. Root and James Brown Scott deserve the chief credit for the remarkable speed with which the commission worked, for the Americans went to The Hague with a complete plan for the court and their view has been accepted by their fellow jurists.

Unlike the original supporters of the League of Nations, Mr. Root entered the conference with definite and concrete views and he was able to convince his colleagues without difficulty. The eminent American lawyer has become a strong supporter of the league, as will be shown when the official announcement is made of his plan for a permanent court. I am able to give the chief points decided upon.

Composition of Court

The Hague Court is to consist of eleven judges and four alternate judges, serving nine years and sitting permanently at The Hague. They will settle purely legal questions between the nations and act as a complement to the existing court of arbitral justice.

These justices will be named by the permanent arbitral court. Four jurists for each nation represented. This court will be requested to form one group, who in turn will be requested to make their selection after a consultation with the highest judicial authorities of their countries, such as the Supreme Court.

Mr. Root had a plan which was considered the best solution offered hereto. There had been a conflict between the big and little powers, neither desiring to be under the domination of the other. Mr. Root held that the league had brought about an equality of the states through the organization of the council and assembly.

The former consists of representatives of the large powers and the latter is made up of representatives of all states, who act as a final repository of international authority. He suggested that the list of candidates prepared by the court of arbitral justice should be submitted to the council and assembly and a vote taken by both bodies, those receiving a majority to be declared selected as judges.

In case of a deadlock, Mr. Root suggested that three members of the council and three of the assembly meet and discuss a basis of agreement. Should a deadlock still exist, he suggested, those judges already elected should select the remaining members of the court. His scheme is believed to have settled the difficulty of an agreement between the large and small powers. Mr. Root believes he has avoided the failure of 1907, when The Hague conference was stuck on a deadlock between the great and little states. There will be a complete understanding among the jurists that a place will be found in the court should America enter the league. These judges will receive adequate salaries and have no other occupation.

Again, when the discussion of the competence court came up, Mr. Root's views prevailed, ably supported by Lord Phillimore. It was urged that the league be asked to call immediately a conference of jurists to recast the international law which has been so sadly shattered in the last five years. As this will be primarily a court established on law and fact, rather than a court of arbitration or mediation, it is essential to revise and extend the international law.

Root's Underlying Principle

The principle guiding Mr. Root is found in his speech of 1907, when he said:

"If there could be a tribunal which could pass on questions between nations with the same impartial and impersonal judgment that the United States Supreme Court gives to questions between citizens of the different states, there could be no doubt that the nations would be much more ready to submit their controversies to its decisions than they are now to take chances on arbitration."

The conference has been following the lines of the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Root, who is thoroughly interested and is enjoying greatly the work of the conference, will come to England in a fortnight and remain until September, when he will return to The Hague to sit at the court of arbitration.

Girl Rider Thrown, May Die

Victim's Skull Fractured in Central Park Accident

Injuries which may prove fatal were suffered yesterday by Miss Mary Frank, thirty-six years old, of 53 Washington Square South, when she was thrown from a horse on the bridge path in Central Park, at Eighty-first Street. She is in Roosevelt Hospital, with a fractured skull.

Patrolman Stephen Dowling, of the Arsenal station, was riding along the path at Seventy-second Street when he saw a riderless horse running toward him. He gave chase and caught the animal at Sixty-fifth Street, retracing the course of the animal's flight the policeman found Miss Frank unconscious beside the path. Eugene Larkin, of 59 West 109th Street, chauffeur for David Warfield, took the injured woman to the hospital. It is believed that Miss Frank's feet caught in the stirrup when she was thrown and that she was dragged along the ground.

Suffragists Center Campaign at Columbus

National Committeemen of Both Parties Will Be Interviewed This Week

COLUMBUS, July 17.—Assured by Governor Cox of his influence to secure the early ratification of the suffrage amendment by Tennessee, leaders of the National Woman's Party will train their guns on the Democratic National Committee, which meets here Tuesday, in hope of obtaining additional pressure. Headquarters will be maintained from which will be directed the campaign to swing both Republican and Democratic national organizations into line to insure the thirty-sixth state for suffrage.

Miss Anita Pollitzer, national legislative secretary, is in charge of the committee of organizers who will interview every member of the Democratic National Committee during their stay here. Members of the Republican National Committee also will be interviewed on their arrival in Columbus Wednesday preparatory to their meeting with Senator Harding at Marion.

Mrs. Bertha Moller, of Minneapolis, is to head the delegation from several states to call on Senator Harding in connection with the formal notification ceremonies. One speaker from Tennessee to present the situation in that state and one representing the party at large will address the Senator under the latter's stipulation limiting spokesmen to bills of health.

to two, their time to twenty minutes and that he not be expected to reply.

Ellis Island Officials Swamped by Arrivals

New Passport and Literacy Tests Hold Up Inspection of Thousands of Immigrants

An effort is being made by officials at Ellis Island to relieve the congestion which has handicapped the work of passing on immigrants during the last two weeks.

The total number of aliens inspected during the last week was 11,282. Of this number 9,762 came steamer and 1,500 cabin. However, ships already in port have brought the total up to 15,103. An investigation of the crowded conditions and the delay in inspections, made by Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, shows that the same force which examined and passed upon 5,000 immigrants a day before the war cannot handle more than 3,000 a day now because of the passport and literacy test restrictions.

The congestion on the island has become so great that steamship companies have been notified that they would have to hold their immigrant passengers on board until a place could be found for them at the station. Some of the trouble will be eliminated by a big decrease in the immigration from Italy, caused by a dispute between the Italian and United States authorities over the issuance of bills of health.
